

Chinese History - Practice Sheet

China is the country that it is today because it has a long tradition of _____ stretching back to [] , when Shun chose his minister _____ to become the next emperor, believing he would perform his duties in the service of the people. For thousands of years, this model of kingship was maintained until the rulers failed to stop the _____ from selling _____ in China. The _____ of [] represents the failure of traditional Chinese government, which was then replaced by _____. It was the _____ leader _____ who said “To get rich is glorious!” in [] and granted his people the permission to trade with the world, thus beginning the “Made in China” phenomenon of our age.